

Safety performance history from each state the driver worked in would be very difficult and expensive for a small company, unless there was a national data base that could be accessed by the small company directly.